

Social and emotional

The child is interested in others and develops her social skills to live harmonious relationships. She participates in group life and learns to respect the rules of life. The child learns to know herself better, to understand, to express and to regulate her emotions. She makes choices based on her tastes, interests and needs. She develops her self-esteem and her confidence in her ability to learn. She acquires autonomy by living all kinds of positive experiences.