

Social and emotional

The child is interested in others and develops his social skills to live harmonious relationships. He participates in group life and learns to respect the rules of life. The child learns to know himself better, to understand, to express and to regulate his emotions. He makes choices based on his tastes, interests and needs. He develops his self-esteem and his confidence in his ability to learn. He acquires autonomy by living all kinds of positive experiences.